WHAT'S FOR DINNER?

Print one for everyone at the table. Each person scores every option from 0 to 10, then you add up the scores on the tally sheet (page 2). It's the same ballot the book proposes for president, with tacos on it.

FAMILY BALLOT

TONIGHT'S DINNER · SCORE VOTING

Score every option from 0 to 10.
Fill in one bubble per option. 0 = no thanks. 10 = yes, please. Ties are fine.

COUNT THE VOTE

Write each person's name at the top of a column and copy their scores down it. Add across each row: the highest total wins. Then count it the old way, with one vote per person for their favorite, and see if the same dish wins.

OPTION	EACH PERSON'S SCORES						TOTAL	OLD WAY
Name:	1	2	3	4	5	6	add across	favorites
Tacos
Pizza
Pad Thai
Breakfast for dinner
Leftovers

TONIGHT'S WINNER: _____

The old way's winner: _____

The old way: give each person one vote, for their favorite (their highest score). The most votes wins. That's how most U.S. elections are counted today.

Tied? Score the tied options again.
